Subject: Psychosocial abuse Maastricht station

Arriva Nederland

At the Maastricht train station, 18 August 2026, there was a man walking in the opposite direction of me on the bridge over the train rails of the Maastricht train station. When he was two meters in front of me, it seems he yelled at an Arriva colleague, if I remember correctly, something along the lines of:
"Hey, heb je de neus nog gezien? Wat een loser...".

What I seem to remember, is that they were employees of the Arriva. But even if not, let it then be a reminder to everyone involved, everyone present in Dutch society, that psychosocial abusive behavior like that described above, is not acceptable. Not behind closed doors, not in public. I, as a citizen, have a civil duty to protect the state and other people with my life, and I will. That includes protection against psychosocial abusive behavior. Even if the behavior is intended as a joke among colleagues. The climate of the train station by this remark at that moment deteriorated. Other people there might have felt threatened and unsafe: "Am I also being humiliated behind my back, maybe behind closed doors by personal of Arriva or other organisations working here?"

In the future I will respond to this behavior by addressing the behavior immediately with the person who behaved like this. It should be regarded as a violation of the code of conduct of society, but also of the train station Maastricht. This is not behaving according to the rules of engagement applicable for participating in society in what ever manner or form.

You have been informed.
